

Pamela Prescod-Caesar

Vice President Human Resources
Swarthmore College

We are complex beings in every way, and although, for the most part, we can't change our inherent characteristics, we have the ability to change our thoughts. We can open ourselves to embrace the vast possibilities in others. We can share our voices individually and collectively. We can take actions and do our part and then we can watch the transformation.